German Exiles Find Peace

(Picture Below)

JERUSALEM (Spl.)—In the pre-Mittler days which seem so idyllic in the light of later events, no one envisioned thousands of German Jews established as pioneers or settlers on the land in Palestine. In all, there were only two thousand German Jews in the country before the Nazi revolution, and these followed the same vocations as they had in Germany. They were doctors, engineers, lawyers, Zionist officials. The rural life was beyond their ken, except in so far as some were concerned with orange groves. German Halutzim were almost as scarce in the Emek Jezreel as top hats, and German farmers following the plough while their wives raised vegetables and chickens were unheard of.

Three short years later we find thirty thousand German Jews in Palestine, of whom seven thousand are living on the land. While not all of those seven thousand are engaged in agricultural pursuits, at least two-thirds are working farmers or else securing the necessary experience. The Jewish arch-bourgeoisie of Germany has turned to the rural life in much larger numbers—relatively and absolutely—than any previous middle-class Aliyah, and done it with characteristic efficiency and thoroughness. German immigrants have penetrated into every type of Jewish settlement and are taking part in the pioneer life in all its manifestations.

The picture below shows these refugees at work enthusiastically on the soil of Eretz Israel. Below them is a bird's-eye view of Ein Charod, the Jewish National Fund settlement in the Valley of Jezreel, which is the training ground for Chalutzim from Germany where they are prepared for agricultural life in Palestine.

Frohman At 85

NEW YORK (Spl.)—Celebrating his eighty-fifth birthday, Daniel Frohman, dean of producers, is shown above at his desk in his New York office. "If I came across a truly romantic play, I'd produce it in a minute," Mr. Frohman said, although he long ago retired from the producing field.

The dean of American producers gave a party atop the Lyceum Theatre with five women "leaders of their professions" as guests—Fannie Hurst, Florence Darnault, sculptress; Pauline O. Field, attorney; Cecile Field, her sister, and Bissell Broke, press agent.

Several years ago on his birthday anniversary, Mr. Frohman declared that he would probably not live the year out to see his next birthday.

Meetings Held With Foreign Arab Leaders

JERUSALEM (JTA)—The murder of a Hebrew University lecturer and the slaying of the four Jews in attacks raised the Jewish toll to 75 over the week-end while foreign Arab leaders were seeking to mediate the 19-week-old disorders.

High Commissioner Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchope called diplomats of Iraq and Transjordan to a conference with Palestine military and Government officials in what was believed a final effort to obtain a peaceful solution of the troublesome situation in the Holy Land.

Following the release, by order of High Commissioner Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchope, of 25 Arab leaders imprisoned in a concentration camp at Sarafend, the news that 25 more would be freed was taken as indication that progress was being made in negotiations to end Arab terrorism.

Emir Faisal, son of King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia, was expected to arrive here to participate in the negotiations.

The Jewish Agency for Palestine, it was learned, made strong representations to the Government against interference by foreign rulers in the affairs of mandated Palestine, holding that this act in itself was a concession to the Arabs.

Meanwhile, eleven Arabs were reported killed in a sharp engagement with British troops near the colony of Karkur. The Jewish toll in current disorders reached 75 when Shoshana Litznitski, 17-year-old girl, and Reuben Strauss, 23, died of wounds received in the ambush of an automobile near Kfar Saba. Two passengers had been killed instantly.

The automobile was carrying six Jewish laborers home from work. Meir Belkind and Baruch Gurevitz were killed instantly. Belkind, was born in Rishon le Zion thirty years ago. He was a member of one of the most prominent Palestinian families and managed the Moshek Heotzar near Kfar Saba. Gurevitz was a colony official.

An Arab terrorist shot and killed Levi Billig, first docent of Oriental sciences in the Arab section of the Hebrew University on Mt. Scopus.

Prof. Billig was slain as he sat working at his desk on an Arab book, "Hashia," his lifework. The murderer fired through a window of the docent's study. A dum-dum bullet tore an ugly wound in the victim's head. The university closed down for the day.

The Editor's Chair

In a letter printed elsewhere on this page, Al Segal still sticks to his guns on his contention that compromise is the best solution of the present Palestinian situation. As proof of his argument, Mr. Segal points to the continued riots, even since the publication of his original column in which he suggested that Jews consent to a temporary stoppage of immigration into Palestine.

It is true that events of the present continue to bear out Mr. Segal's contentions. It is just as true that the age-old role of the Jew is being grossly misrepresented in the consistent refusal of Jewish leaders to agree to the demands of Arabs for peace. Bloodshed is being chosen instead of peace.

Yet there is one point which Mr. Segal overlooks, and it is this consideration which changes the entire complexion of the situation. That is what might be called the "historical perspective." If Jews were to agree to a temporary closing of Palestine's doors to Jewish immigrants, there is more than an even possibility that it would be years before Jews would be allowed to reenter in any great numbers into the land which they have already recreated out of a wilderness of sloth, lethargy and desolation. If this same Arab demand had been granted in 1929, forty to fifty thousand Jews would not have poured into Palestine annually since then. In the face of this historical necessity, even bloodshed is a preferred alternative. When Jews asked God for permission to fight on the Sabbath, it was granted to them. This is historical necessity.

Concession now to the Arabs would mean ultimate hegemony of the Arabs. To lose the splendid foothold in Palestine already gained is unthinkable, even to hazard the loss of this foothold is unthinkable.

Boston - - The Utopia For Anglo-Jewish Publications

In explaining its preponderant publication of news on two subjects—anti-Semitism and Palestine—The Boston Jewish Advocate last week declared, "Everyday Jewish life in Boston, or in other large cities in the United States is trivial and insignificant compared to these larger matters which affect the whole." "Activities of local synagogues," the editorial continues, "or temples, or charities, or local Zionist groups are of interest to a limited number only and have significance only for those directly affected."

The experience of the Advocate is as close to Utopian as any Anglo-Jewish publisher could desire. Boston Jewry are more interested in Palestine and anti-Semitism than in the comparatively petty incidents of their own friends and neighbors in their own city. In Chicago, The Jewish Champion uses the adjective "indifferent" in describing the attitude of Chicago Jewry to important Jewish problems. The California Jewish Voice, after a prolonged exhortation of its lethargic Jewish community, has charged Los Angeles rabbis with the apathy of the Jewish citizens to Jewish questions.

The experience of this paper, too, has been totally opposed to that of the Advocate. Society items, and columnists have found a far greater response from readers than the continued portrayal of pogroms, riots, murders and arsonry. If anything, the printing of news of Palestine and anti-Semitic occurrences in Germany and elsewhere has earned the censure of readers, who protest that too much atrocity news is being printed.

It is a sign of the day that Jews like their non-Jewish neighbors are more interested in pretty girls, choice bits of gossip and sex affairs. But when Jews proclaim this interest to the exclusion of the more important problems they and their co-religionists face, then what anti-Semites have sought to accomplish for 2,000 years will have been effected without the burning of one Jew at the stake or the ousting of one Jew from his job.

The majority of Anglo-Jewish editors have been forced to contend with this disinterest in profound happenings, whose effects are much closer than the Jewish layman imagines, for many years. The Jewish Daily Bulletin was forced to discontinue publication because its news was all of a heavy nature, but not before it had earned the name of "The Daily Pogrom Bulletin."

Anglo-Jewish publications do not make the news, they only print the news. When they print all the news, they usually go bankrupt, because their readers lose interest in a daily repetition of the horrible happenings to Jews throughout the world. Even when they attempt to mix unfortunate occurrences with society items, they are censured. There is only one other solution. Either move to Boston, or follow the Jewish Daily Bulletin into oblivion.

Relations As Usual Between Majority Of Jews And Arabs

Returning to the United States after teaching in Palestine for two years, Miss Sulamith Schwartz, formerly of Brooklyn, said this week that in spite of the current disturbances in Palestine the majority of the Jewish and Arab sections of the population continue their daily tasks as usual. There is a feeling that work must go on and whatever the contending questions are they will soon be settled.

Miss Schwartz, who is an honor graduate of Barnard College, is here to complete her studies at Columbia University for the Ph. D. degree. When she finishes her dissertation on "The Biblical Roots of Elizabethan Poetic Language" she will return to Tel-Aviv, where she has been a of English in the city's high school. She has spoken Hebrew since the age of six, and during her attendance at Barnard and Columbia won high honors in English literature, Anglo-Saxon, teacher of English in the city's high school. She has leaders in American Zionism, Miss Schwartz was national president of Junior Hadassah, the Young Women's Zionist Organization of America, from 1931 to 1933.

Miss Schwartz, who is 25 years old and just reaches the five-foot mark spoke with fervor of the feelings and hopes of the Jewish people of Palestine during the current crisis in that country.

"One of the most gripping scenes in all of Palestine in the past months was the building of the new harbor in Tel-Aviv after the Jaffa port, controlled by Arabs, was closed to the Jews," she said. "Workers not only volunteered their labor but contributed to the funds needed to construct the new harbor. Queues of working men and women stood before the banks when the selling of shares began. The purchase of even a single share was in most instances a real sacrifice. In five days more than $300,000 was subscribed."

"The Jews of Palestine feel that they are in a sense responsible for the Jews of all other countries. They feel that they are delegates of the entire Jewish people, representing the race in its striving for a land where they may live as of right and not on sufferance. The Jews of Palestine can never be happy with the knowledge that Jews who must leave other countries have no place to go. That is why the right of Jewish immigration into Palestine is so important and why nothing should be permitted to jeopardize that primary right.

"Before leaving for America I visited the children's village of Meier Shfeyah, near Haifa, which is especially interesting to me because it is maintained by American Jewish girls through Junior Hadassah. The children understand the difficulties in the country and they are brave. Only a few days before they had extinguished a fire in their fields. Yet they continue as always with their studies, and plan work in the fields and the shops. 'To go on is necessary for both the Arabs and the Jews,' one of the older children told me."

When occasional sniping interrupts work in Palestine it is stopped only temporarily and then continued, as if nothing had happened. Miss Schwartz related that in the Emek Jezreel, a large agricultural development of the Jews, 20 colonists of Tel Joseph, most of them women, went to the vineyard to gather grapes. On the way they were shot at from a nearby ambush. The colonists ran to protection. When the sniping was over, about an hour later, they emerged and the gathering of grapes then continued.

When Miss Schwartz left Tel-Aviv for Haifa to embark for the United States, the train was late due to derailment. On the station Arabs and Jews talked pleasantly and peacefully together. A Jewish policeman, an Arab policeman and two British policemen chatted together. The Arab policeman played with a little blond Jewish boy.

"After all, three-quarters of the Arab people are peasants who are not interested in the strike," Miss Schwartz declared. "A small number of wealthy landowners and nationalistic youth comprise the minority that is fomenting trouble. It is significant that there is more ferment where there are fewer Jews, among Arabs whose contact with Jews is very slight. For instance, the cities of Nablus and Jenin, which are 100 per cent Arab, have been the scenes of the greatest agitation."

"Restraint, courage and a resolve to continue to build' is the motto practised by the Jews of Palestine during this crisis. The women and children, as well as the men, are guided by the same qualities. The women continue to work side by side with the men, and aid in self-defense when necessary."

Freedom of the Press

Segal Is Still Segal

To the Editor:

I find my meager vanity all puffed up today after reading what you wrote about me. I will not take it home because if my wife sees it, she will say (as she always does): "As I told you, you are the only one who doesn't appreciate you."

But, despite the thrashing I have suffered on my rear, I still believe there is a peaceful way out of the Palestine tragedy. Certainly, British machine guns (which seem to be quite alert) are not stopping the slaughter of Jews of whom every day more are dying at the hands of Arabs.

Certainly, it is no homeland in which the comfort and security of Jews depends upon the precarious protection of guns.

You will find that in the end we shall have to come around to a compromise.

Thanking you, I am,

Sincerely,

Cincinnati, O.

To the Editor:

On the fourth page of the August 14th issue appears an article on an approved treatment of cancer.

As I know someone who is suffering from this, I would appreciate it if you could give me full information as to where this injection may be procured, who puts it out and any other pertinent data regarding it so that I in turn can refer this to my physician.

Please answer promptly.

Other People

It has been said that every one's life story, or the way that people live, is of interest and fascinating to any one else but the party about whom it be written... in simpler words though your way of living may to you seem drab, stale and uninteresting, yet another person reading about your actions finds interest and attraction in them...this is all an introduction for what is to follow, namely, what I have been doing for the past few weeks and what you have been doing for the same length of time...what you have done may not seem of value or interest to you, but I assure you to me it would make very interesting copy if I could but have it in written form before me to go over... the reverse of this is also probably true...you may be interested to know how and where I have passed my time the past few weeks....

It seems that vacations always fly by while working hours seem to drag... speed however is only relative... by the side of the sluggish snail another slow poke the turtle is a marvel of speed... man flashes across the sky in a roaring airplane at more than four hundred miles per hour... yet how slow indeed is this besides that of the earth itself which slips along its orbital journey at 66,600 miles an hour and not roaring... in the past few days I too have covered some space... 2000 miles of it, to be exact, which is a lot of miles for a boy who wanted to take a quite restful vacation close to home... first it was up to Eagle River, Wisconsin with Ed Cohn, Dave Bernstein and Jason Weiss a distance of 600 miles by our speedometer... by the way I assume you all know these three boys?... Ed is a big shot at Wassons, Dave is head of activities at the State Law Library and Jason is a medic at Chicago University... incidentally a good combination to travel with if you want to be well prepared... doctor, lawyer, and business man... four glorious days in Wisconsin, swimming, horseback riding, boating, fishing, eating and sleeping (under blankets)... then a hurried call over W. U. and my very sudden departure and flash across space over 900 miles to Pittsburgh, P. A... the loss of a loved one and grieving and lamenting, then to Cleveland, Ohio another 150 miles to be with my brother, and my thoughts, and trying to justify in my mind that what has happened is God's will, and finding it very difficult... thence home to Indianapolis another 300 miles or so, completing a 2000 mile jaunt... what a time... what a trip... what a vacation... bah, I have a right to be a little bit cynical... what I need now is a vacation and a darn good rest... but don't we all?...

Thing I Have Heard Since Returning

That Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Bodner have sold their beautiful new home on Wash. Blvd. at a nice profit and are already building a new one right next door to where they lived... that Adelaide Cohn and Barney Stein have decided to remain just friends... that Judge Pickens of Superior Court No. 3 passed away in my absence from the city... a personal friend of mine... I have sat as pro tem in his room on several occasions...

That Ernest Fisher has married...

That the apartment on 37th and Meridian St. is again under construction and I understand, although I am not positive, that it is to be a 48 apartment building with rental around $75.00 per...

That Allen Berkowitz has taken himself a wife...

That Mrs. Fannie Kiser Rosenak widely known harpist has been added to the faculty of the harp department of the Arthur Jordan Conservatory of Music... I understand that at the present time she is with her parents Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Kiser visiting in Banff and Seattle, Washington...

That Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sebel are the proud parents of a baby boy born in the Methodist hospital last week... a nice new playmate for their three daughters...

That Harry Kempler is no longer a bachelor...

Socializing

There are two spots that have really gotten a big play from Indianapolis this summer and one of them is Edgewater Beach, Chicago and the other is Lake Wawasee... it seem that if you patronize them you can see half the town up at either of them... you can have a good time at either of them because there is always someone there you know... Betty Asher and her sister Helen have returned from Edgewater... it won't be long until Betty will be called Mrs. Mary Louise

Plans For Financing Trip Made As New York Game To Turn Over Funds

BY MORRIS WEINER

NEW YORK (JTA)—Barring hell and high water, the 1940 Olympic Games are already scheduled to be held in the land of the Rising Sun. And with the Olympic fire of the Hitler jamboree only recently doused it seems strange indeed to be mentioning another one of these international sport parades—and that four years in the offing. But, the crucifixion of the Olympic spirit of sportsmanship at Berlin notwithstanding, the next Olympiad offers a new mark for the Jew in sports to aim at.

Palestine, with an all-Jewish athletic contingent to represent it in the sports arena, will participate in the Japanese Olympiad. For the first time since Baron de Coubertin saw his dream come true in 1896 Jewish membership on Olympic teams will not have to be measured in fractions of percentages. The Jew will compete with the world; will toe the mark with Japs and Italians, and French men. The Jewish athlete will be on his own team and fighting for his own team.

The traditional homeland of the Jew has been a member of the International Olympic Federation since 1934. At the very first meeting of the Maccabi-Tel Aviv Sports Organization—the equivalent of the A. A. U. in this country—that body decided against participation in the 1936 Olympic games if held in Berlin.

Plans are under way at this moment to finance an entire Olympic contingent to the Orient. With the cooperation of the Federation of Polish Jews in America, part of the proceeds of an all-star soccer game which will be held in New York City on September 27 will be sent to Palestine where the Maccabi-Tel Aviv Sports Organization is building a stadium and for the improvement there of sports.

Whether this latest addition to the Olympic Federation can produce a team capable of competing successfully against the athletes of the world still remains to be seen. However, several members of the United States Maccabi Teams that won brilliant successes at Tel Aviv in 1932 and 1935 think this is not so difficult a task. Dave White, captain of the American Expeditionary forces at both Maccabiads says, "With the proper coaching and training facilities the Jewish athletes in Palestine can make athletic history." Sybil Koff, outstanding star of the first Jewish Olympics and the girl who beat Jesse Owens' mark of four first places by four years, declared, "There is no doubt in my mind but that the women athletes of Palestine can be developed into world champions in the track and field and water events. Their daily activities make for the best conditioning."

J. True Seeks Death For 15

NEW YORK (JTA)—The New Masses, in the second of a series of articles on anti-Semitic movements in the United States, says that James True, head of James True Associates and America First Inc., told its interviewers that fifteen "big Jews" in this country should be "bumped off."

"Then we wouldn't have any trouble," he is quoted as having said after characterizing the fifteen as the Jews "who run things here and are part of an international alliance to plan to wreck Christianity and the world."

The article, written by Michael Hale for the radical weekly, states that the Black Senate Committee and the Dickstein House Committee on un-American activities have promised that Mr. True's activities will be investigated. Headquarters of the True organization are located in the National Press Building.

The writer says that True mentioned only Professor Felix Frankfurter of Harvard University by name as one of the Jews who ought to be "bumped off and put in their graves."

"Of them all," he is reported to have said, "Felix Frankfurter is the strongest. He ought to be the first to go."

Replying to a question from the New Masses interviewer, True said the names of the Jews appeared in the White Knight, official organ of the Knights of the White Camellia, which the writer alleges is a terrorist organization sponsored by True.

Among the names in the White Knight, almost all of whom are prominent Jewish leaders are Cordell Hull, Bernard Baruch, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., William C. Bullitt, ambassador to Russia; Supreme Court Justices Cardozo and Brandeis and Jesse Isidor Straus, ambassador to France. The New Masses publishes the list in its current issue.

Accusing Major Ernest Brown, police superintendent of Washington, D. C., of shielding True from any official probe, the magazine quotes Brown as saying, "I feel that True is a 100 per cent American, 100 per cent in the best sense of the word."

Anti-Semitic Meeting Called For Washington

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (NCJC)—In the face of the refusal of the National Conference of Clergymen and Laymen, meeting here to fight Communism, to disbar Jews, a small group seceded from the Conference and held a separate meeting at First Christian Church.

The anti-Semitic group immediately decided to call a meeting in Washington, D. C., October 15 and 16 when a permanent organization will be formed.

An advisory council was formed which includes the names of a number of notorious anti-Jewish agitators. Among these are Harry A. Jung, Chicago, Robert Edward Edmondson, New York, James True, Washington, and Col. E. N. Sanctuary, New York. Rev. Gerald Winrod, Kansas anti-Semite, was named chairman of a committee to arrange the details of the Washington Conference.

Berlin Appearance Refused By Dancer

LONDON (JTA)—The Daily Star reported last week that Nina Verchinina, member of the De Basil ballet, had refused to accompany the troupe on a trip to Berlin for a performance.

Miss Verchinina, who is of "Aryan" descent, is quoted by the Star as protesting strongly against the treatment accorded Jewish artists by Nazi authorities. She will rejoin the troupe in New York.

Gruenbaum Pushes Polish Emigration

WARSAW (JTA)—Isaac Gruenbaum, head of the organization department of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, arrived here last week to continue negotiations with the Polish Government looking toward a $10,000,000 Poland-Palestine transfer agreement that would permit Jews to migrate to the Holy Land with capital in the form of goods since export of currency is barred.

Band Repeats Kol Nidre By Request

ROCHESTER (Spl.)—In response to popular acclaim accorded the Hebrew program of the preceding Sunday, the Rochester Park Band, under George W. C. Matz's direction, last week repeated several of the traditional Jewish numbers. Assisted by the Rochester Male Chorus, led by Henry Jacobson, the band rendered the famous "Kol Nidre" hymn.

OUR FILM FOLK OF HOLLYWOOD

By HELEN ZIGMOND

HOLLYWOOD—The other day an inconspicuous obituary in a Nova Scotia newspaper told finis to the life of one Bernard Goodman, a tailor, eighty years old. Few took note of the passing of Theda Bara's father.

Billy Rose . . . as was inevitable . . . has come to Hollywood. He is hailed by some as the greatest showman since Barnum. In three fields he has shown his genius . . . for night club frequenters he created the Casino de Paris . . . "Jumbo" was something original as a circus . . . the Fort Worth Centennial was colossal among fairs. He's thirty-four years old . . . and only beginning his career. Perhaps Movieland will be his next arena.

At concerts it happens . . . but it's rare, if ever, that a vaudeville stage is filled with an overflow audience. Yet for Eddie Cantor's recent personal appearance in San Francisco three hundred people sat before the footlights.

Mayer talks to Cukor . . . Cukor speaks to Garbo . . . but Garbo addresseth only the telephone. When George Cukor, directing Garbo in "Camille," needs to confer with the star off-stage, he does so via the Bell system. He does not approach her dressing-room . . . nor she, his office.

Insurance during production is a specialty. Samuel Goldwyn insured "Dodsworth." He took out policies covering the players' health, the negative and the success of the picture. Each policy cost him five thousand dollars . . . but had any one coverage gone wrong, Lloyd's of England would have had to pay for the entire cost of the production—one million dollars.

Nibblits: Sam (Schlepperman) Hearn will create a new character—"Horace Nimble" for the Show Boat air program. Director Fritz Lang winks behind two monocles . . . one over each eye. Luise Rainer is a skilled photographer, pianist, painter . . . and writer of recipes. Michael Loring warbles a neat swingin' tune called "Joggin' Along" in his debut flicker, "Yellowstone." Little Sybil Jason receives numerous pets of every description from admirers . . . the Jacobs' menage now houses dogs, cats, geese, ducks and . . . a few white mice.

If you thought the Moses-and-the-snake scene in "Green Pastures" was trick photography, you were only half right. It was a trick, but not with the camera. The snake . . . a real one . . . was frozen by quick refrigeration, was handed to Moses as a walking-stick, then became thawed out, wiggly and slithery, in the intense heat of the klieg lights.

Eleanor Whitney, speeding tapster, has special air vents constructed in her soles because her shoes generate heat during the dance.

Mrs. Goldman, preoccupied watching the trailers, had difficulty in quieting little Sammy who incessantly wanted to know what the picture was about. Finally she silenced him with, "Sh . . . sh, they're just showing the samples now!"

'S all . . . see you later.

London Notes

Issy Bonn, a comedian who looks as though he just walked out of the Talmud Torah, is one of the latest sensations on the British Broadcasting Company's networks. . . . He's stout, bashful-looking chap. . . . His stage rig features a black derby stuck on the back of his head and a wisp of a chin whisker. . . . He is busy touring the variety houses introducing his three G-men. . . . Goldberg, Ginsberg and Goldstein. . . . Our London snooper heard him bring the house down with his yarns about the golden wedding. . . . It seems from his story that you are supposed to bring gifts of gold to golden weddings . . . So Murphy brought a goldfish. . . . MacTavish brought a pack of Gold Flakes (the Camels of England). . . . Ginsberg brought his friend Goldberg. . . . And London is still singing the human qualities of Sir John Simon, the Home Secretary, who locked arms with another man in boy-scout fashion one day and tramped a quarter of a mile with a little Jewish boy named David Drucker, carrying the lad, suffering from a badly cut foot, to a place where he could receive medical attention. . . . And during the journey, Sir John kept up a steady stream of pleasant conversation to keep the injured lad's mind off his wound. . . .

Book

Maurice Samuel spent a full year translating The Brothers Ashkenazi, Knopf's sensational novel by I. J. (Yoshe Kalb) Singer. . . . And the publishing house was a full two years in preparing the volume for publication. . . . The Brothers will appear on September 12 and if your Mr. Peters can get around to it, he's going to do a full-length review for his vast public. . . . A quick glance through its pages leads us to believe that a tome of major importance has been released to the world. . . .

Romeo

Our movieland insider informs us that it will be at least a full year before Juliet's dulcet tones will be heard saying "Wherefore art thou, Romeo?" in Hebrew for Palestinian audiences. . . . The film must first go the rounds of American movie palaces before the Holy Land's eyes and ears are given an opportunity. . . .

Birthday

Will some one set us straight on why Who's Who in America (1931 edition) gives Rabbi Stephen S. Wise's birthday there as March 17, 1872 and Jacob de Haas's Encyclopedia of Jewish Knowledge gives it as 1874. . . . Dr. Wise himself prefers the latter date.

No Answer For Official's Death

BERLIN (JTA)—How did Captain Wolfgang Fuerstner, builder and organizer of the Olympic Village, die? That is the question which Europe asks today—and no official answer is forthcoming.

Captain Fuerstner who was of Jewish descent was one of the last "non-Aryan" officers to retain active rank in the German Army. Few army men were as prominent as he was, especially so since he was administrative official and assistant in command of the Olympic village.

The latest and apparently most authentic version of his death was that he committed suicide after being discharged from the army for being a "non-Aryan."

Other versions of his death were current. Olympic press headquarters have asserted that Fuerstner "dropped dead probably from a heart attack, the aftermath of overwork." An Olympic officer, however, gave out the report that the army captain was killed in an automobile accident. In other European capitals, it is said that Fuerstner was killed in an accident with a pistol.

Captain Fuerstner was the object of vicious attacks from Nazis and the press because of his 25 per cent Jewish blood. Recently the anti-Semitic Judenkenner assailed him because he was not a "complete Aryan." Before and during the Olympics, inscriptions like, "Down with the Jew Fuerstner" were scrawled along the walls of the Olympic village.

COUGHLIN'S TALK HIT BY CATHOLIC CLERGYMEN

Hadassah Protests Slaying Of Two Jewish Nurses From Ambush

Monsignor Ryans, Other Take To Task Radio Priest

NEW YORK (NCJC)—Catholic, Protestant and Jewish leaders expressed resentment at a challenge made by Father Coughlin at the Cleveland convention of his National Union for Social Justice in which the radio priest asked Jews to state whether they believed in the "Christian" principle of brotherly love.

In his address, Father Coughlin said: "We are a Christian organization in that we believe in the principle of 'love thy neighbor as thyself.' With that principle I challenge every Jew in this nation to tell me that he does or does not believe in it."

"I am not asking the Jews of the United States to accept Christianity and all of its beliefs, but since their system of 'a tooth for a tooth and an eye for an eye' has failed, that they accept Christ's principle of brotherhood."

Monsignor John A. Ryan of the Catholic University of America tersely replied: "Father Coughlin's reference to 'an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth' is bad exegesis, bad history and bad argument. It is unjust to Jews and unfortunate in the political campaign."

The Rev. R. A. McGowan, assistant director, Department of Social Action, National Catholic Welfare Conference, said:

"Father Coughlin forgets the remarkable work for economic justice done by the Central Conference of American Rabbis during the past fifteen years that I know of. The Social Action Department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference has joined with them on at least a dozen occasions during that period in pleas for social justice, the most far reaching being the statement issued shortly after the 1929 crash, which advocated public works, slum clearance and public housing, social insurance, shorter hours and retention of wage rates, a democratic guidance of American economic life in which labor would share, and wide distribution of wealth and income."

Dr. Frank Gavin, professor of church history at General Theological Seminary, New York City, who is a graduate of Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati, and one of the few Christian scholars who have studied at a Jewish theological seminary, asserted:

"It is rather late in history for Father Coughlin to read the Jews a lesson in 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.' The Jews were the first to teach that very principle. Let Father Coughlin read his Bible, Leviticus 19:18 and St. Luke X:26-28. This instruction of Judaism was the reason why Christ's faith and Christ's people brought a new measure of hope to humanity and became the divine inspiration of the Catholic Church. The 'eye for an eye' doctrine was thoroughly repudiated by the Jews very early in their history, much sooner in fact than by any other people, for every nation without exception followed that barbarous doctrine in the slow upward climb toward so-called civilization."

"No good purpose can be served by raising a 'bogey man,' namely, the Jew, and then charging him impliedly and almost explicitly with being responsible for the Augean stables in present-day

OUSTED DOCTOR SUICIDE

Forced From Extensive Practice, Refugee Takes Own Life

NEW YORK (Spl.)—Dr. Walter Bermon, 35, surgeon refugee from Germany, committed suicide at Tientsin, Manchukuo, on June 30, according to information received today by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society from its office at Harbin.

A family tragedy preceded his flight from Germany. Having parted from his Arya wife, Dr. Bermon, who graduated from the University of Berlin in 1922 and had an extensive practice in Berlin as well as in Coblenz, took his only child, a boy of 7, with him to China. During the last few months Dr. Bermon brooded much over his exile. Before taking poison, he addressed a note to the Jewish community of Tientsin requesting it to take care of his child. He specified that "under no circumstances shall the boy be sent to Germany to his wife or his wife's mother."

HEADS REGATTA

PORTLAND, Ore. (Spl.)—Aaron M. Frank, prominent merchant and expert yachtsman of this city, has been named admiral of the forthcoming 1936 Astoria regatta, leading water event of the summer season here.

NEW YORK (Spl.)—Rabbi Abraham L. Feinberg, of Mt. Nebo Congregation, will be heard over the Columbia Broadcasting System's "Church of the Air" program Sunday from 1 to 1:30 o'clock EDT.

Fiorella H. LaGuardia's mother was named Irene Cohen Luzzatti, and was a cousin of Italy's outstanding Jew, Premier Luigi Luzzatti. She is buried in the Jewish cemetery in Budapest.

world affairs. It reminds one of the doctrine, 'neutrality in principle,' while shipping instruments of slaughter to both sides. We need no 'inquisition' to challenge Jews to accept a principle which they first taught the world and which is taught in every Jewish synagogue in the world. I feel certain that the highly respected and enlightened church to which Father Coughlin belongs would not approve such a misleading and sorrow-laden statement as he has made."

Dr. Louis Finklestein, professor of theology at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, said that there is no need for challenging the Jew either on his love for his fellowman or on his loyalty to the American flag. Two thousand years have not embittered the Jew, he declared, against those who have maligned him. The loyalty of the Jew to the American flag is beyond doubt, he added, emphasizing that others may love America merely as the country of their birth, but the Jew not only loves America but reveres her as the sacred embodiment of the fundamental principle announced by his ancestors, the prophets, to the world that "all men are made in God's image."

"Father Coughlin's so-called 'Challenge to the Jew in America' would be an amazing statement," the rabbi said, "if uttered by the most illiterate layman. It becomes incredible in the mouth of a representative of a great church. Certainly, Father Coughlin must have found time to read the Book of Leviticus which is part of the Hebrew Scriptures, and in that event, he must know that the commandment, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself,' is found in Leviticus, 19:18. Even one who has not read the Hebrew Scriptures must recognize from the statement in the New Testament that Jesus, who quotes his verse as the first of the commandments, meant that it was the first of the commandments of God to the Jews. In this the founder of Christianity agreed entirely with the foremost authority of the Talmud, Rabbi Akiba, who also said of this verse that it is the most inclusive principle in the whole of the Scriptures. The great Jewish teacher, Hillel, a contemporary of Jesus, paraphrased it in the rule, 'What is hateful to you, do not to your neighbor.' He said that this was the whole of the Law, all the rest was commentary."

Poles Injure JDC Official Helping Fight Arson Blaze
WARSAW (JTA)—A representative of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, M. Zichlinski, was injured last week in Truskolas when anti-Semites stoned Jews attempting to extinguish a fire in the Jewish quarter. The fire was the third case of suspected arson in the quarter in six weeks. It gutted two houses, leaving six families homeless.

Calls For Public Opinion To Halt Terrorist Acts

NEW YORK (JTA)—Hadassah, women's Zionist organization of America, strongly condemned the murder by Arabs of two Jewish nurses attached to the Government hospital in Jaffa, Palestine and called for public protest against an act "which violates all laws of humanity and decent conduct."

"Hadassah is profoundly shocked," stated Mrs. Moses F. Epstein, acting president, "by the cabled report of the death of two Jewish nurses, killed by Arab terrorists in Jaffa."

"Hadassah established the first school of nursing in Palestine, and made possible for both Jews and Arabs of that country a modern nursing system for scientific care."

"We cannot believe that the world will look on unmoved at this kind of outrage, which violates all laws of humanity and decent conduct and makes a pretense of the standard which modern civilization has accepted for the conduct of one human being toward another."

"We trust that the conscience of the world will express itself in unqualified denunciation of this kind of act and thus exert a pressure on public opinion which will make impossible the recording of such incidents."

Vets' Resolution Aimed At Rabbis

NEW YORK (JTA)—The Executive Council of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States last week adopted a resolution declaring that American Jews "are more than willing to fight in defense of our country or its democratic principles."

The resolution is specifically aimed at one recently passed by the Central Conference of American Rabbis calling on the Federal government to exempt from military service Jews who have religious scruples against war participation.

The veterans' declaration says that "Jews in general do not subscribe to pacifism" and seeks to eradicate the "impression" that military service is in contravention of Jewish teaching and ideals."
